Mr Lane of Umatilla.

Mr Speaker I shall detain this House but a few minutes. I am aware that nothing I can say can alter the predetermination of this body. Neither eloquence nor argument—and I am not vain enough to think that I can bring either to bear—will change the determination of any one upon this floor. It is in no manner [illegible] to myself that I shall explain briefly the reasons which control my action. As far as the moral or abstract question of slavery is concerned I do not conceive that it is involved. Suffice it to say that I do not look at it from a Brougham or Lord Palmerston standpoint. Uncle Tom's Cabin and Helper's Impending Crisis may in minds superior to my own deserve a place among the political works of the land but I have ever been wanting in credulity [illegible] whole or it may be that in my [illegible] them with proper authority. Works of that nature may be orthodox to some; to me they have ever seemed like the ravings of disordered minds. However I was educated in the christian religion and I pray I may never forget the hallowed lessons of my infancy and hence revere and love that religion and the [illegible] upon earth. But for those [illegible] whose vulgar harangues and unchristian invectives against an institution once common throughout the land and which have done more than any other class to bring about the terrible struggle through which the country has passed I have now as always a most unbounded contempt. Notwithstanding the fact that curses and anathemas against the South and against slavery have for many years in the North been the only means of securing political success and popular applause I am proud to record myself one of the minority [illegible] perhaps than was my distinguished friend from Benton (Mr [illegible]) [illegible] one of the majority [illegible] Nor do I see aught in sacred writ [illegible] cause me to question the morality of my position.

On the contrary I see commands given directly from God to Moses establishing and regulating it. And it has often occurred to me were it the heinous sin it is said to be our Lord and Savior while upon earth would have inveighed against it as against every crime. None even of his apostles [illegible] St Paul says, "Servants obey your masters" [illegible] little like abolitionism. In fine, if I read sacred history aright [illegible] Christ suffered and Moses recognized slavery. However profane history is even [illegible] the majority. Slavery has existed from time immemorial. It is but a short time indeed that harsher names for an absolute servitude have ceased even in the most enlightened lands. England whose lectures on philanthropy and abolitionism sowed the seeds of discord in our midst and finally effected a division of our Union—whose base perfidy and treachery came nigh effecting the ruin she sought for—not long since had her feudal system and the proud Briton and Saxon wore the badge and collar of slavery. Not a hundred years since, various systems [illegible] wanting only the name—so, too, has every European power [illegible] will we [illegible] (peonage is but a milder term) [illegible] the fairest portions of our country are allowed to become a barren waste. England it is true did manifest an honest zeal in the cause of the negroes of the West Indies. To what result? To lead them to a fate whose horrors are fast being developed. The fairest islands in the group have decreased one hundred per cent in material prosperity and the moral and mental condition of the negro growing daily worse is even now most painful to contemplate. Moore, we are told, enjoyed his Utopia. Bacon no doubt took pleasure in contemplating his New Atlantis, and the [illegible] philanthropist doubtless enjoys his dreams in relation to his idol the negro but they are all alike vain, shadowy and chimerical. God may change us so as to fit him for Utopia but God only can so change the negro that he can be made to realize the hopes of his friends. My friends from Josephine and Jackson (Messrs Cox and Fay) have most ably embraced the entire subject and have left but little for me to say.

I will allude however to a point which they have almost entirely exhausted. That is, the power to amend is not unlimited. I do not conceive it is reasonable to suppose our fathers intended it should be. Indeed, to certain rights expressed in the Constitution there are exceptions. Of the reserved rights they are necessary and absolute exceptions. We have been denounced as inhuman barbarians. I console myself with the knowledge that all the framers of our Government are equally liable to the same calumny. They not only sustained slavery, but provided for the importation of slaves. The old Confederation which was intended to be perpetual was destroyed not because the scheme was entirely an impracticable one had good faith and good feeling been maintained but because such was the jealousy of the States—the fear of the centralization of power—and the negative power of the States unduly and continuously exercised that the Government became in effect a nullity. It was to remedy these defects by conferring on the General Government certain powers which the Confederacy had discovered to be necessary that our present form of government was organized. The various States then before the adoption of the Constitution stood in the relation to each other of separate and independent nations with all the rights and privileges belonging to the same. When they did adopt they simply delegated to the General Government the powers expressed in the Constitution and reserved to themselves respectively the powers not denied them or granted away. Of these rights as they belonged to the States not in their collective but in their separate individual and independent character no State can be divested save by her own [illegible] separate and voluntary act. If this [illegible] is not correct, history is false and the thirteen original colonies never had any separate existence or rights and a State it would seem [illegible] no rights but such as three-fourths of the States may suffer them to enjoy. And it would follow as an irresistible conclusion that our present State Government will be overthrown. Our entire form of government changed from a Republic to a despotism. It is an insult to the head and heart of our ancestors, to say that they depended [illegible] patriotism of the people alone to prevent such [illegible] But I am told that the Constitution guarantees to every State in the Union a Republican form of government which would prevent the [illegible] I have mentioned. And [illegible] showing the [illegible] of the Government would prevent the [illegible] in the ruins of the Republic. Sec IV of Art IV could be [illegible] and I am not aware that the [illegible] of the Constitution is a part of it. I [illegible] a law is often called in to [illegible] but [illegible] law cannot [illegible] But grant that it is a part [illegible] could not be repealed [illegible] the fact is the power to amend is necessarily limited.

[illegible] at the very [illegible] for the protection [illegible] first instituted [illegible] vital fun[illegible] [illegible] the regard of the [illegible] the least [illegible] the general [illegible] slaves property? [illegible] the Supreme [illegible] United States [illegible] private property [illegible] shall [illegible] public use without [illegible] Is this proposed amendment [illegible] law? Clearly [illegible] the New York Court of Appeals [illegible] the process of law must [illegible] secure to every person [illegible] governmental [illegible] except as the [illegible] judicial proceedings appropriately and legally conducted. A law therefore which by its own inherent force extinguishes rights of property [illegible] extinction without any [illegible] whatever comes directly in conflict with the Constitution. This argument cannot but commend itself to the [illegible] of every reasonable man. It [illegible] admit that we have the power [illegible] Constitution. Is there [illegible] obligation [illegible] science alone but under the Constitution [illegible] provide adequate compensation [illegible] My own argument would have [illegible] weight [illegible] cannot dare not disregard the [illegible] of Justice Marshall: "It may be doubted whether the nature of society and of government does not prescribe some limits to the legislative power [illegible] expressly limited [illegible] where are they to be found if the property of an individual fairly and honestly acquired may be seized without compensation." [illegible] if we have any power to deal with this question we must provide compensation. But I am convinced that it is a flagrant usurpation upon the part of three fourths of the States. It is an usurpation aiming directly at the liberties of the people. To use the language of a distinguished judge in a certain decision: "In a country like this [illegible] of public good or public necessity [illegible] so plausible or even so truthful as to command popular majorities but whether truthful or plausible merely and by whatever numbers they are assented to there are some absolute private rights beyond this reach and among those the Constitution places its right of property—and further, when the rights are acquired by the citizen under the existing law, there is no power in any branch of the Government to take them away." Judge Chase an old Federalist is equally as clear and explicit. "There are acts which the Federal and State Legislatures cannot do without exceeding their authority. There are certain vital principles in our free Republican Government which will determine and overrule an apparent and flagrant abuse of Legislative power, as to authorize a manifest injustice by a positive law or to take away that security for personal liberty or private property for protection whereof Governments were established." These able and unanswerable arguments establish my position beyond the shadow of a doubt. But I will quote Judge Comstock again—it is vanity in me to presume to add any argument of my own. "The powers of the Congress and State Legislatures are restricted not only by the express provisions of the written Constitution but by limitation implied by the very nature and form of our Government." We have then no right so to amend the Constitution as to rob a man of his property, nor is there a right anywhere to take any kind of property without just compensation. Slaves are property—returned to their masters as such even in Boston—exist as such by no provision of the Constitution but recognized by it like all other property, established as such by the various States prior to the formation of this Government. This then is not to amend remedy or correct any defects of the organic law, but it goes beyond and aims to destroy a right vested in the States alone and which they each in their own individual and separate capacity can regulate and control. I claim that not all the States in the Union can establish slavery in Oregon against our consent, neither can all the States in the Union abolish slavery in Kentucky against her consent. I see to confirm me in my position that up to the present moment there have been no amendments divesting the States of any reserved rights. I pray that not to us will attach the blame of an innovation whose consequences may prove fatal.

Mr Speaker: It is as essential to the perpetuity and safety of our Union, the liberty, happiness and prosperity of the people to preserve the rights of the States, as it is to preserve the powers of the general agent. But in the language of Judge Gibson "Where there is a successful attempt to overturn property even in a single instance the liberty of the citizen is no more." 'Twas a priceless heritage, this Government, baptized in the most sacred blood of our sires! and it is our duty to preserve and protect it as pure as it was bequeathed us. Mighty sacred and holy duty! may we never forget it nor prove recreant to the trust!

INGENIOUS EXPERIMENT.—Place on a sheet of white paper a piece of blue silk about four inches in diameter, in the sunshine; cover the center of this with a piece of yellow silk about three inches in diameter, and the center of the yellow silk again cover with another circle, of green silk about one inch in diameter, then cover the green silk with a circle of indigo about half an inch in diameter and in the center of the whole make a black dot with a pen. Then look steadily for a minute on the central spot, and close your hands about an inch distant before them, and you will appear to see the most beautiful circle of colors that imagination can conceive, which are not colors of the silk, but will keep perpetually changing.

If one should give me a dish of sand and tell me there were particles of iron in it, I might look for them with my eyes, and search for them with my clumsy fingers, and be unable to detect them; but let me take a magnet and sweep through it, and how would it draw to itself the most invisible particle by the mere power of attraction. The unthankful heart like my fingers in the sand, discovers no mercies but let the thankful heart sweep through the day, as the magnet finds the iron so it will find in every hour some heavenly blessings only the iron in God's sand is Gold.—O W Holmes.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE STATE

SATURDAY MORNING DECEMBER 23, 1865

Virginia

The problem to be solved in restoring Virginia to the Union causes about as much perplexity as is occasioned by any other of the many unsettled questions which are involved in the restoration of lawful authority throughout the South Since the close of the rebellion Virginia has been proceeded with on a plan far different from that put in operation in the other insurrectionary States When the rebel government was destroyed Pierpont was already Governor of Virginia But he was a Governor only in name He had partial authority in three or four counties, and that was all A short time after the capture of Richmond he moved his capital from Alexandria to that city—President Johnson choosing to let him retain the gubernatorial office rather than to appoint a Provisional Governor, as he had done for the other States That this was an unfortunate resolve, the sequel now shows It has resulted in reviving the rule of the secessionists in Virginia and in delaying for an indefinite time the re-establishment of a loyal government in the State

Virginia seceded in April, 1861 A large part of the State, comprising the section known as West Virginia, with a few counties along the Potomac and on the eastern shore, did not acquiesce in the action of the Richmond conspirators, but instituted a government of their own. Under the State government thus organized, Pierpont was chosen Governor. Soon after the State of West Virginia was formed, and elected a new Governor, leaving to Pierpont and the State of Virginia a narrow strip of country around Alexandria and a few square miles of territory about Norfolk and Portsmouth Of the inhabitants of even this small territory, few were loyal A legislature was chosen from less than a half dozen counties, and from the election returns it appears that all the members did not represent more than five hundred votes. The legislature went through the formality of electing two United States Senators Two or three members of Congress were chosen by a small part of the people of that small fraction of the State. Congress, however, refused to recognize or sanction so farcical a proceeding, and the House rejected the persons who offered themselves as members from Virginia, it having become apparent that they represented no constituency Carlile was admitted to a seat in the Senate, but it is clear that the State of Virginia as it then was, never received full recognition by the Government.

This puny State government was removed to Richmond last June, and what loyalty there was in it once, is now merged in or corrupted by the the rabid disunionism which so largely predominates there. Pierpont, though elected as a radical Unionist, or rather as a violent Abolitionist, has been infected with the secession virus which is generated at Richmond. His legislature is free from all savor of loyalty. It insolently [illegible] that the two States of West Virginia and Virginia be reunited, It takes a course that will inevitably lead the authorities of the two States into collision unless the Government interferes to check Virginia's arrogance.

A further evidence of the spirit of this legislature is seen in its late [illegible] in passing a law directing an estimate to be made of the amount of property destroyed in each county by the Union army during the war, and also that means be adopted to [illegible] take the number of slaves held in Virginia at the time the Emancipation Proclamation was issued by President Lincoln, with a view to [illegible] a claim to Congress for their value.

Pierpont goes to Washington uttering, through the tone of "the South," and [illegible] in all [illegible] like one of the "chivalric" gentlemen and aristocratic slave-breeders whose [illegible] was so remarkable in the days before the war. The "reconstruction" that is going on in Virginia looks more like the "[illegible]" of the Southern Confederacy than the restoration of that State to the Union under the rule of patriotism and loyalty.

The "Nasby Manner" from Jackson.—The "Blackened Walls of [illegible]" [illegible] Jackson at the close of his tirade [illegible] of the [illegible] to the Constitution, [illegible] which, he said, "stands blackened in the air."

This is the first intimation we have had that [illegible] was a part of the late Southern Confederacy. Nor were we before aware that the "mud hovels" of Oregon were called "homesteads," or ever stood out more than "blackened in the air."

We heard a good story the other day in connection with this same [illegible]. Any one who has ever heard the young Irish orator, knows that he is all mouth and impudence but for a [illegible], can rant loudly and even melodiously.

The story was told by McCartney of Lipk, and was to this effect: The [illegible] from Jackson reminds me of a [illegible] minister's preaching, as was heard by an old lady who had heard him for the first time. Coming home she declared to her husband; "I do love that preacher. I never heard any body like him before" "But" says the astonished husband, "what did he say?" "Oh! John, I don't know; I just love him." Upon the husband's repeating his interrogatory two or three times, the secret of Betsey's admiration came out. "I don't know anything he said" answered she, "but, John, you ought to hear him; he has such a Christly tone. Oh! I do love that minister so much."

McCartney had him there. That was worse than "blackening his homestead," Fay's tone is—well, terrible; but, like Betsey his hearers can't remember anything he says, because he don't say anything

The Dead of the Salisbury Prison Pen.—The following statistics, showing the number of Union prisoners confined in the stockade at Salisbury, N. C, at the dates indicated, with the number who died there within the same period, have been copied from the prison register by Mrs Johnston, a loyal woman, who obtained possession of that horrible record of dead men's names

	ADMITTED.	DIED	REMAINING
October, 1864	620	558	214
November 1864	1,269	302	407
December, 1864	958	614	824
January, 1865	602	460	246
February, 1865	392	153	239
March, 1865	91	5	86
April, 1865 1 day	6		6
April 1865, extra	27	9	18
Total	4 054	2 397	1 657

From the foregoing, it appears that nearly two thirds of all the prisoners confined at Salisbury, from October 1864 to April 1865, died within the same short period This army of dead is but a small part of the whole number who perished in that prison pen from exposure, privation and inhuman treatment Many of them were buried in trenches four or five deep, and, of course all means of identification are lost Of the whole number, the names of but fifteen with the record of their place of interment, are preserved Save these few, all sleep in silent and unvisited graves without mound, monument or stone to tell where they lie So must they ever sleep, "unknelled, uncoffined and unknown"

Negro suffrage, a thing which, if adopted the Oregon Statesman two months since declared would prove the ruin of our Government, at once lost all its odious features in the estimation of the editor of that paper when he found that President Johnson was unmistakably in favor of gradually introducing it Bah! what a truckling slave.

Beecher on Gen Lee.—Henry Ward Beecher, known erewhile to the "Democracy" by many opprobrious names, is now, in the mutations of things, receiving the applause of the New York World, the News and the entire Copperhead press. Some weeks ago Beecher delivered a sermon, the spirit of which was a complete "letting down" from his former, earnestly expressed opinions on political subjects. In that sermon he remarked "I have been pained by the many criticism I have seen in the papers on Gen Lee In an hour of weakness he committed himself to the cause of the rebellion Since that time he has acted as he became him, the fact granted that he conscientiously believed in the cause of the South, we must admit that he has conducted himself without an unnecessary violence." "Political preaching" like this the Copperheads don't object to They see Christianity in it. And patriotism And "Democratic" doctrine But the theology that is embodied in it is something which orthodox minds can't quite understand Mr. Beecher has not illustrated it in this sort of homilectics so as to enable us to comprehend how a conscientious belief in a wrong thing makes it moral and right. If Gen Lee was right because he conscientiously believed in the cause of the South then Mr Beecher can never atone for the wrong he has done him in having urged the overthrow of the cause which he had so nearly at heart The fact that General Lee has now become a quiet citizen and has taken the oath to support the Constitution, does not speak very eloquently in his favor when we remember that he is now re sworn—the same oath having been taken once before by him and shamefully broken Perhaps his friends think his oath of loyalty is now, as Hamlet says, "deeply sworn," and therefore inviolable

The Jacksonville Reporter of the 16th, has the following

We hear it rumored in town that some of our capitalists are bestirring themselves in the matter of starting a Woolen Factory in this neighborhood, and for that purpose have been looking up an eligible site for the field of their operations We understand that the neighborhood of Phoenix is likely to be the place selected This is a move in the right direction and if the gentlemen whose names are connected with the enterprise only exert themselves in the matter it will not be long ere the busy hum of commerce will be familiar to the ears of the residents of Jackson county

How to Stop Divorces.—By a Prussian law passed in 1862, no divorce can be tried until the clergyman of the parish in which the unhappy couple live has had an opportunity of reconciling them to their chains In the year 1861 there were 7,000 couples who wished to part and out of these no less than 1,870 were induced by the clergyman to give up their unamiable intentions In this way the lawyers lost no less than forty eight per cent of their expected business

Petersburg.—A few weeks ago a gentleman in Petersburg employed for the purpose by the military authorities, canvassed the city to ascertain the number of houses struck by Federal shells during the recent siege His investigations developed the fact that there were over eight hundred houses struck by whole shells beside large numbers of others which received rude touches from fragments

The Cattle Plague.—The London Times says,

At length we have got some statistics of the cattle plague, and a ghastly look they wear. Upward of fourteen thousand animals are known to have been attacked by the plague since its first appearance, and of these nearly twelve thousand have died To be sure, more than five thousand of these victims were killed to save curing, but they swell the total loss of stock. As to the recoveries there are registered just seven hundred and seven, which would be only five per cent on the whole attacks but then the proportion can, of course only be measured by the number of cases in which cure was attempted. The metropolitan district appears to have suffered most, as might naturally be expected, though perhaps the tale is swelled in this case by the greater completeness of the reports. Then come the southeastern counties, and then the eastern—which however, according to the classification adopted, include only Essex Norfolk and Suffolk—and then Scotland These four districts account for upward of twelve thousand cases out of the whole fourteen thousand leaving only some thousand casualities for all the rest of England and Wales In fact, there are whole groups of counties where but a score or two of cattle have been lost This is certainly reassuring but we must observe that the returns from which we quote only profess to represent the cases reported to the authorities, and are not supposed to express the actual extent of the visitation They are correct enough, no doubt as showing the distribution of the disorder, but not as measuring its ravages

A correspondent of the Albany Evening Journal calls attention to the fact that by the published returns it appears that in forty three counties in New York the Union majorities were 59 649, the largest in a single county 5 500 in St Lawrence while the Democratic majorities in seventeen counties were 32 000, of which 23,100 was given in the city of New York alone, or barely 8 000 in other portions of the State, so that outside of the city of New York the Union majority was 51 749

General Grant a Member of a Missionary Society.—Lately the members of the Bedford street Methodist Episcopal Church New York subscribed $150 to make Lieutenant General Grant a life member of the Missionary Society under the patronage of the Methodist Church. The patriot is congregation of Bedford street last year made President Lincoln their representative in the missionary work, and afterward they raised a new subscription to place President Johnson in a similar position

'If Congress' says a Jersey Copperhead 'can say that a negro shall vote in Virginia, they can say that a Democrat shall not vote in New Jersey' This comparing the negro to a Democrat is one of the most flagrant acts of injustice ever perpetrated upon a long suffering and down trodden race

Shoes in Massachusetts.—In the little Massachusetts town of Milford, last year 1,119 229 pairs of boots and 1 141 191 pairs of shoes were manufactured, valued at $7,291 304, Employment was furnished for 2 000 males and 157 females

Gen Meade expresses the opinion that 25,000 men belonging to the Army of the Potomac are living who have been disabled by wounds and are incapable of self support

SLEIGHING CONTINUED.—Up to last night we were yet receiving additions to the snow in this section, and sleighing was continued with all the enterprise that characterized the first days' exercise. It becomes man, woman, or child, who are not so fortunate as to have a sleigh to ride in, or a fast horse to draw it, to look out for those who have. A certain recklessness enters into this five-dollars-an-hour business that spares nothing for the convenience of pedestrians. Look out for your heels and take care of your hat.

PATENT SOAP.—Mr. J. W. Call, who has received the agency for Warren's Patent Soap for the State of Oregon, yesterday left at this office a sample of the article made by himself in this city, which he asks people to test. He is leaving parcels with all those who are favorable to trying it.

MASONIC.—Special meeting of Harmony Lodge No. 12, F. & A. M., this (Saturday) evening at 7 o'clock. Work in M. M. Degree. By order of W. M.

THE LATE PRESTON KING.—The Eastern journals all comment upon the melancholy fate of the late Preston King. The following from the New York Times, is probably from the pen of his warm personal friend, Thurlow Weed:

King was unable to stand the pressure of his official position. Every allegation of misconduct in subordinates disturbed him. The great number of meritorious and wounded officers and soldiers asking for situations, excited his sympathies. Two or three reported cases of fraud alarmed him to such a degree that two weeks ago his nerves gave way. It was suggested that he should go to Ogdensburg for a week or fortnight in the hope that repose and home associations would tranquilize his mind. He did go, but finding no rest there, returned to the Astor House on Saturday. It was immediately evident that no favorable change had occurred. He said to the friends around him that he had broken down; was incapable of making any effort; that he had no judgment or memory, and no power to resist what he knew to be imaginary evils. In the meantime his mental and physical health was unimpaired. He requested that Weed should be sent for early in the morning, and passed most of the day in conversation with him and two or three other friends. He spoke freely of his mental aberration twenty-five years ago, and expressed a desire now to go to an asylum. His nervous system, and that only was affected. But it was quite clear that he must soon have relief. On Saturday afternoon and Sunday he frequently spoke of resigning; and it was arranged that after an examination by Dr. Brown, of Bloomingdale Asylum, on Monday, he would either resign then or await for a few days the effect of medical treatment. He had been disinclined to consult a physician until informed that Dr. Brown was at the head of an asylum. He remarked to Weed twice on Sunday that death, if it could be reached without crime, would be relief.

He had intervals of tranquility, when his mind could be drawn away from the evils it created, to the fact that in all respects his circumstances and condition were such as to bring contentment; that he had no cares, no sorrows, no cause of anxiety; and that his lot compared with hundreds of thousands, was enviable. To all he assented, and for half an hour cheerfulness returned to him. Finally, when Weed left him, on Sunday evening, he seemed quite content to await the interview with Dr. Brown, who came on Monday, but the patient had departed to return no more.

Various reasons have been alleged to have been the cause that prompted King to so lamentable a step in taking his own life. According to all accounts he had been very much perplexed ever since his appointment to the Collectorship by the numerous crowds of office-seekers who constantly sought audiences with him both at his office in the Custom House and his rooms at the Astor House. Being of an easy disposition, he permitted the pressure to close in around him, and had not sufficient nerve to stop it. Others again state that there are troubles in the Custom-house, unknown as yet to the public; and that the loose way of conducting business there has for weeks past preyed upon the mind of the Collector. Those, however, who have been most intimate with King deny the above reports, and say that he often labors under temporary aberration of mind. He is reported as having said to his friends that he expected to lose all his property and would die a bankrupt. They kept a constant watch upon his movements, and even induced him to permit a companion to occupy a room with him at the Astor.

DEPARTMENT REPORTS.—We condense from the latest dispatches:

"Under the provisions of the Homestead Law, 1,160,533 acres of land were entered during the last fiscal year. On the 1st of May the total number of persons on the pension list was 85,958, requiring for their annual pay $8,023,445.

The revenue of the Post Office for the past year foots up $14,556,158, and the expenditures $13,694,728.

By the report of the Secretary of the Navy it will be seen that at the commencement of the present year there were in commission 530 vessels, armed with 3,000 guns, and manned by 51,000 men. The number of vessels now in commission is 117, with 830 guns and 12,128 men.

By the report of the Secretary of War it is shown that the military force on the 1st of May was 1,000,516 men. Over 800,000 of these men have been mustered out, and the Department is still rapidly reducing the number. The war estimates are reduced from $516,240,131 to $33,814,461, which amount, in the opinion of the Department, is adequate for the peace establishment.

It is estimated by the Secretary of the Treasury that the expenditures for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1866, will exceed the receipts by $112,194,947. It is gratifying, however, that it is also estimated that the revenue for the year ending June 30, 1867, will exceed the expenditures in the sum of $111,682,818. This amount, or so much as may be deemed sufficient for the purpose, may be applied to the reduction of the public debt, which, on the 31st October, 1865, was $2,740,854,750."

CAUGHT FOUL.—A bachelor friend of ours passing up the street one day, picked up a thimble. He stood for a moment, meditating upon the probable owner, when, pressing it to his lips, he said:

"O, that it was the fair lips of the wearer!"

Just as he had finished, a big, fat, ugly black wench looked out of an upper window, and said, "Boss, jis please to frow dat fimble in the entry. I jis drap it!"

THE PEOPLE OF EARTH.—The number who have lived upon the earth since the creation has been estimated at about 27,000,000,000,000,000. This sum, when divided by 27,864,000, the number of square miles of land, gives 1,314,522,086 to a square rod, or 5 to a square foot. Suppose a square rod capable of being divided into 12 graves, each grave would contain 100 persons; so that the whole earth has been 100 times dug over to bury its inhabitants, supposing they had been equally distributed. Were the bodies lain on the surface, they would cover the land to the depth of 100 feet!

It is a curious and significant fact that the Emperor of Mexico is continually investing large sums in Europe. His Majesty's last speculation is the erection of a splendid palace at Lacroma, an island near Ragusa. The cost of the building alone will be $600,000. Stolen from the Mexicans, of course.

REPAIRING DAMAGES.—Under the head of "Reconstruction" the Fort Smith (Arkansas) New Era remarks that the officers and soldiers who lately were zealously killing are now with equal zeal marrying. The New Era adds, contentedly, "this is as it should be; and we say to all, go and do likewise."

MESSRS. SMITH & DAVIS, of Portland, have always on hand a good supply of the genuine Hall's Pulmonary Balsam. No family should be without a bottle of this valuable remedy in the house.

MANY CASES OF RHEUMATISM, SKIN DISEASE, Diseases of the Urinary Organs, and indeed of Chronic Disease generally, seem not curable by ordinary medical treatment, however skillful. For this reason the undersigned has made arrangements for the treatment of this class of diseases, by which the patient may have the benefit of Dr. Langston Parker's method of treatment by fumigations, the use of many of the mineral and saline waters; baths in sea water; general and local baths of water, heated air and simple and medicated vapor, in addition to such other medical or surgical treatment as may be indicated.

USE NONE BUT THE BEST.—Thousands of worthless preparations are scattered broadcast over the land, purporting to be specifics for Consumption. Some may possess a little merit, but when it is known, beyond the possibility of successful contradiction, that Newell's Pulmonary Syrup has accomplished all that is claimed for it, as a remedy for all affections of the chest and lungs, it seems little short of criminal neglect for persons requiring such a remedy, to waste the "golden moment" in experimenting with any other. It is equally applicable and efficacious in all cases, young or old.

A NEGLECTED COUGH, COLD, OR SORE THROAT, which might be checked by a simple remedy, like "Brown's Bronchial Troches," if allowed to progress, may terminate seriously. For Bronchitis, Asthma, Catarrh, and Consumptive Coughs, "The Troches" are used with advantage, giving oftentimes immediate relief. Singers and public speakers will find them also excellent to clear the voice, and render articulation wonderfully easy.

Notice to all Persons having Demands on the Government.

PENSIONS, BOUNTY, PRIZE-MONEY, PATENTS, Pay for Vouchers, Scrip, Back Pay, Lost Horse and Spoliation Claims obtained by the undersigned, who will attend to all other business before the Departments at Washington City.

Soldiers becoming disabled or diseased while in the service, are entitled to a Pension. Those who served in any war previous to the 30th of March, 1855, are entitled to Bounty Land. Those who served in the Navy during the late war, and were legally attached to a vessel or squadron on duty, although not participating in the taking of prizes, are entitled to Prize Money. In many Indian Treaties provision is made for payment of Spoliation Claims out of Annuities. To collect the large number of such claims now owned in this country,—for the settlement of which no similar provision has been made by treaty—demand should be made at once therefor at the proper Department, and, if found just, recommendation will be made to Congress to pass an act retaining the amount thereof out of the Annuities.

Mexico—The United States and The Monroe Doctrine

The London Times of the 2d of November republishes Seward's Auburn speech entire, and then comments as follows

We are told that the Emperor of the French contemplates the gradual withdrawal of his troops from Mexico and Seward has made a speech which he appears to rely at present rather on the force of example than the power of the sword for preserving the republican character of American Government. If the views of [illegible] are as significant as they appear, the way to a pacific settlement is plain. The French Government may refrain from extending its arms in Mexico and the [illegible] only [illegible] which the American Government has directly deprecated. On the other hand, the Americans may accept what has been done as an accomplished fact, and trust to the course of events for bringing about a modification of the actual results

It is in Mexico that the pretensions of the Americans to the exclusive influence appear most extravagant and less sustainable. If the Monroe Doctrine were only interpreted to mean that no European Power should effect conquests on American soil, or conduct a crusade against contented but unwarlike republics, the theory might be intelligible. Mexico was not a contented nor an inoffensive republic. Except in name, it is not a republic at all. It was a country in a condition of hopeless anarchy, absolutely disorganized and with no claim to be recognized as a civilized State. It had given the most scandalous offense to other nations by confiscating their property and maltreating and murdering their citizens. For these prolonged and multiplied grievances there was no redress to be obtained, for there was no government from which it could be sought. All the ordinary expedients of international action had been tried in vain, until at last three of the Powers of Europe concerted a joint expedition to set matters right. The upshot was the establishment of a monarchical government in Mexico under an Austrian prince.

Now, what could the Americans object to this? Of course they did not like it, and would rather have had the intervention and occupation reserved for themselves, but at least they never doubted the necessity of the work. They knew just as well as we did that the Mexicans had proved themselves absolutely incapable of self government; that their "Republic" was a mockery, as well as a nuisance, and that it must be seized some day by foreign hands unless the whole country was left to lapse into barbarism. Of these convictions they made not the least secret. There are people in this country who appear to believe that Mexico was just upon the point of regenerating itself when this expedition was made and that if the party uppermost at that moment had but been allowed a few months more we should have seen an independent and well organized republic arise from the carnage and anarchy before prevailing. No such illusions as these, however, have been entertained in America. The Americans look with jealousy on European intervention and monarchial institutions, but, to do them justice, they have never pretended that wrong was done to any of the rival cut-throats who were contending for power in Mexico. Nor can they allege that the intervention was either provoked or premature. It was not undertaken, as they are well aware, till the patience of Europe was exhausted and the outrages of the Mexican rulers had become intolerable. They are well aware, also, that the intervening Powers could do no other wise than they did. The Austrian Prince was a necessity, or, at least, the only alternative was a Prince of some other nation. Mexico did not possess a single man, or a single party deserving of [illegible] or support. The first step in the reorganization of the country was to sweep away the factions which had disputed place and power. The Americans had contemplated this duty as their own. They saw that Mexico was tumbling to pieces, and they thought it would one day find a new life in the bosom of their own Union. As it happened, the thing did not last quite long enough. The crash came while America had enough upon its hands, and the work devolved upon others, who conducted it, of course, upon principles of their own. America would have given Mexico a new President—France gave her a new Prince.

It is perfectly reasonable that Maximilian's empire, when once established, should be left to stand alone, and draw its support from the recognition and gratitude of the people. The proper work of the French ceases with the establishment. When the Emperor of the French has enabled the Mexicans to emerge from their anarchy and taste the blessings of security and order, he has performed his part, and it will be for Mexicans themselves to keep what they have got. The withdrawal of the French troops, therefore, will be a natural event, and after it has taken place the Americans will only see on their continent a thriving monarchy instead of a republic in ruins. [illegible] It will not be for the credit of republican principles to thwart so good a work as this out of spite against the name of monarchy, in which it has been wrought; but if the Americans are to rely on the force of example, such an operation of the Monroe doctrine would be beyond [illegible] as well as beyond control.

Mono Lake—The Dead Sea of California.

Disputes have arisen as to whether Mono Lake is a portion of California or Nevada. The Bellevilleian has it properly in California, near the base of the Sierra Nevadas, and it says:

"Its water is so highly impregnated with alkaline water as to parch and burn the tongue, on tasting it; [illegible] your hand in it, and the skin will shrivel, unless immediately rinsed in fresh water. The lake has been most aptly termed the 'Dead Sea' of the West. It should be called the 'Live [illegible]'—it is a sea of life, and is always live by from the most dreadful storms. It is true, the lake contains no fish of any kind, yet its waters teem with animal life. This alkaline solution abounds with myriads of aquatic [illegible] and animalcula. They are first seen as larva floating on the surface, then lower in the water in the form of animalcula, and finally they sport in the water in the form of small grub worms swimming about in the manner of little fishes. The margin of the lake is strewed with their tiny carcases, where they are driven by storms and piled up in ridges or mounds from one foot to three feet in hight. Their remains emit a very unpleasant odor, over and around which continually swarm a peculiar black fly, either feeding off the decomposing mass or depositing its ova.

The lake affords fine feeding ground for innumerable water fowl, such as gulls, ducks, geese, brant and swan, which remain in the neighborhood until the spring, laying their eggs on the many islands in the lake. It is said that many of these birds have been shot and found with the webs of their feet eaten off by the corrosive quality of the water. The few Indians that now inhabit the country around the lake, collect vast supplies of these aquatic grubs, and after drying them in the sun, roll them between stones until a white kernel falls out, which they mix with the flour of wild rye and roots, and devour as luscious morsels. The lake contains numerous islands, several of which have many boiling springs, sending up beautiful columns of steam. All of the islands present evidences of intense volcanic disturbance; on every side are to be seen the craters of these extinct fires, and lava and other igneous remains cover the ground with their fantastic forms. Numerous large streams flow into the lake which has no apparent outlet. Though it is well sheltered by a succession of lofty mountain ranges encircling it, perhaps no more boisterous sheet of water can be found anywhere. Storms and hurricanes prevail full nine months in a year, they are not regular and continuous, but occur in the most sudden and fitful fashion, without a moment's premonition, which renders any attempt to navigate its waters unpleasant if not hazardous. Near the southern extremity of the lake are the remains of three remarkable volcanoes. These three cone-shaped peaks rise to the hight of fifteen hundred feet, presenting craters of great and variable depth from which there once belched forth vast volumes of molten lava. Their sides from summit to base are even now covered with vast accumulations of debris and offer a most inviting field to the curious and intelligent traveler.

EMIGRATION TO LIBERIA.—The first installment of colored emigrants from Lynchburg (Va.), to Liberia, took their departure from that city for Baltimore last Tuesday night. There were about 150 of them—men, women, and children. The scene at the railroad depot for an hour previous to their departure is described as having been of unusual interest. Religious services were held, songs were sung and prayers uttered for the safety and welfare of those who were about to commit their destinies to the vicissitudes of a strange land and an uncertain future. It is stated that another company of 300 will start from Lynchburg for the same destination in a short time.—Richmond (Va.) Republic, November 11.

"JIST LIE THAR AND COOL."—A good story is told of a member of the Georgia Legislature, some years ago. He was from one of the back towns, and "put up" at a hotel for the first time in his life. Before his plate at the dinner table one day was a dish of peppers. He kept looking, and looking at them, and finally, as the waiters were rather slow in bringing on things, he up with his fork and fastened upon one of the peppers, and into his stomach it went. In a moment the tears came into his eyes and he hardly knew what to do. At last, spitting the pepper into his hand, he laid it down along side of his plate, and with a voice that set the whole table in a roar, exclaimed, "Jist lie thar and cool!"

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL.

WEEKLY REVIEW

PORTLAND, December 21, 1865.

Trade has been unusually dull for the week, under review, in consequence of the loss of travel to [illegible] points above on the Columbia river, and the interruption in communication with Astoria. Dullness is not unusual under such circumstances at this season of the year.

The steamer Pacific is in the river, but at the present writing it is a matter of conjecture as to whether she will be able to reach her dock in this city, or come at St. Helens with the Cascade, which left last evening for such purpose. So soon as the Cascade returns the [illegible] will sail. The [illegible] Capt. John Wiggin, is still at the dock, unable to proceed. It was thought [illegible] that the [illegible] will pass down [illegible] and attempt to make the voyage for San Francisco.

We have nothing now to report in the matter of financial transactions. Money is in demand, and [illegible] rates [illegible] are full and unchanged, with [illegible] refer to Mining stocks inactive.

Wholesale and Jobbing Prices.

PORTLAND, December 22d, 1865.

No new features are apparent in the market the past week in consequence of the inclement season. Dullness pervades every branch of trade and there are few alterations of prices to note. Owing to the unsettled condition of markets at the East and elsewhere, and very large amount of importing in [illegible], no [illegible] to take [illegible] for this reason stocks in all the various branches of trade on the coast, are lower than they have ever been before. The interruption to trade here now, by the closing of navigation, will bar our merchants from taking any particular risks, as they cannot forward the goods if they could sell, and it is hoped by the time trade is resumed matters will be in a more healthy condition.

It is a very difficult matter to foretell the state of the market for any future time. There has never been before in the history of the country, anything to limit confidence near its present scale. The want of confidence has limited the power to produce, and these impediments have been operating for months. What the result is to be is a subject of conjecture and already people East are predicting a financial crash.

Domestic Produce Market.

PORTLAND, December 22d, 1865.

Notwithstanding the roads leading to the city are thought now to be in most excellent condition, the receipts of domestic produce are light, and prices nominally remain the same as for last week.

The only transactions in wheat worthy of mention for the week, was the disposal of 1000 bushels from Spring ville, for milling at the Brooklyn mills, at current rates. Buyers are now offering 57½@65 cts ⅌ bushel for oats. Apples in boxes command 1c ⅌ ℔, and are quoted for shipping at 65 cts ⅌ box.

The weather is now more like winter than usual for Oregon. Snow has fallen to the depth of eight inches during the week, on low lands, and the roads are in excellent condition. It is thought by many that this weather will have an effect to be severe on stock in the country, unless it has been provided for. There is now in the hands of dealers in this market, a [illegible] hay to supply all demands, [illegible] the present cold weather should continue longer than three weeks.

The above market presents many inducements for the holidays. We think we have never before seen it so abundantly stocked with all manner of game. Ducks are plenty and very cheap, but snipe and quail are rather more scarce, and command good prices. Turkeys range from $1 to $4 and we have heard of sales at $6 a piece but the last figures were for extra fowl.

Butter comes in sparingly, and remains high. Good, fresh eggs are also scarce and command furnishing prices. Honey is quoted at 25 cents per pound extra nice quality sells at 50 cents.

Woolen and Cotton Goods.

PORTLAND December 22d 1865.

Cotton goods are very scarce on the coast at the present time, and the deficient supply alone sustains prices. The New York Independent of late date has the following on the condition of the cotton goods market [illegible]

THE STANDARD AMERICAN BILLIARD TABLES!

AND COMBINATION CUSHIONS.

MESSRS. PHELAN & COLLENDER

WOULD RESPECTFULLY CALL THE ATTENTION of persons wanting Billiard Tables to the great superiority of the above tables manufactured exclusively at their establishment.

At the Billiard Congress of 1863 competed all the first class players of America, it was unanimously resolved that tables of our manufacture should be used at all matches for the Championship as the best and [illegible] reliable tables.

These Billiard Tables have received the unqualified approval of the best players and most competent judges who have universally pronounced them superior [illegible] general excellence and durability.

Seven distinct patents for improvements in Billiard Tables have been granted by the United States Patent Office, and we have lately obtained a Patent from the French Government, for our improvement in Billiard Cushions.

We employ in the construction of our tables, a variety of machines specially made for the purpose, by means of which we are enabled to insure a result of the most minute accuracy hitherto unknown in Billiard manufacture.

Having a long experience and thorough knowledge of all the appliances of Billiards, and constantly [illegible] a large stock of the best and most thoroughly seasoned materials, we are prepared to furnish everything required to the Billiard line with promptness and dispatch.

The eminent French Billiard Player, M. Berger, has published the following opinion:

"New York, 2d August 1861.

On the eve of leaving the United States, I am happy to declare to all amateurs of Billiards that after a tour of eleven months through the principal cities, I have been enabled to judge fully of the superiority of the Billiard Tables manufactured by Phelan & Collender. The system of manufacturing is so superior, that I am happy to introduce their style of cushion into France. They have united to their manufacture of American Billiard Tables that of the French Tables, of remarkable excellence and beauty. For these reasons I am happy to make this declaration.

"BERGER CLAUDIUS,
Prof. of Billiards, Paris."

Parties ordering from us will find our prices as low as good work can possibly be made for. We sell first class articles at a fair price, and will not make an inferior article at any price.

Orders by mail carefully and promptly executed. Illustrated Catalogues and Price Lists sent by mail. The "BILLIARD CUE," a journal published in the interest of Billiards and containing details of all novelties, a regular record of Billiard news, and everything of interest to amateurs of Billiards, sent free on application.

M. E. HUGHES,

730 Montgomery St. San Francisco Cal., is our only authorized Agent on the Pacific coast, to whom all orders should be addressed.

The Remedy for Curing

CONSUMPTION, COUGHS, COLDS, Asthma, Croup,

Diseases of the Throat, Bronchitis, Pains and Oppression of the Chest and Lungs, Difficult Breathing and all the Diseases of the Pulmonary Organs.

ITS ACTION IS EXPECTORANT, ALTERATIVE, SUDORIFIC, SEDATIVE, DIAPHORETIC AND DIURETIC, which renders it one of the most valuable remedies known for curing diseases of the lungs. It excites expectoration and causes the lungs to throw off the phlegm or mucus; CHANGES THE SECRETIONS AND PURIFIES THE BLOOD; heals the irritated parts; gives strength to the digestive organs; brings the liver to its proper action, and imparts strength to the whole system. Such is the immediate and satisfactory effect, that it is WARRANTED TO BREAK UP THE MOST DISTRESSING COUGH IN A FEW HOURS TIME, if not of too long standing. IT IS WARRANTED to give entire satisfaction even in the MOST CONFIRMED CASES OF CONSUMPTION! IT IS WARRANTED NOT to produce costiveness (which is the case with most remedies) or affect the head, as it contains no Opium in any form. IT IS WARRANTED TO BE PERFECTLY HARMLESS to the most delicate child, although it is an active and powerful remedy for restoring the system. THERE IS NO REAL NECESSITY FOR SO MANY DEATHS BY CONSUMPTION, when ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM will prevent it if only taken in time.
